

STREET CAMERA OPPOSITE NO. 14

The camera faces the shop front across the road. Reviewed for the Case Review Unit.

TIME	OBSERVED
22:13:40	A young man on a bicycle stops outside No. 14. Consistent with T. LARK.
22:13:58	He unlocks the shop door and goes in. The shop lights stay off.
22:14:30	A light comes on at the back of the shop, in the workshop.
22:18:52	The workshop light goes off.
22:19:41	He comes out holding a white cable and a plug. He locks the door and cycles away.

No other person approaches the shop door between 21:00 and 23:00.

Reviewer's note. This matches his account in C-2 minute for minute. It does not show whether he went near the front counter. The camera cannot see that far in.

MR ROLAND VOSS - CUSTOMER

CRU

You viewed the Tennant watch on Friday afternoon.

RV

I did. Lovely piece, far too much money. The young woman let me hold it for ten minutes or so. I gave it back to her across the counter and she put it on its tray.

CRU

Did she put the tray back in the safe?

RV

Not while I was there. She left it on the counter under the glass. The safe door was still open behind her when I went, I remember thinking that was trusting.

CRU

What time did you leave?

RV

I bought a watch strap on my way out, so the card receipt will say. I'd guess five to five.

COUNTER CAMERA, FRIDAY 16:30 - 18:10

One camera above the front counter. The display safe is visible in the corner of the frame, behind the counter.

TIME	OBSERVED
16:38	P. DESAI opens the display safe and takes out the Tennant tray.
16:41 - 16:55	A customer (R. VOSS) examines the watch at the counter and hands it back.
16:56	DESAI puts the watch on its tray and leaves the tray on the counter. The safe door stays open.
17:30	M. HOLLIS puts on her coat and leaves by the front door.
17:49	DESAI lifts the watch off its tray, wraps it in a square of tissue and puts it in the inside pocket of her own bag, under the counter.
17:57	DESAI places the tray, now empty, in the safe and closes the safe door.
18:05	DESAI sets the alarm and leaves with her bag.

Reviewer's note. The tray went into the safe empty. The watch was never in the safe overnight.

DISPLAY SAFE - FINGERPRINTS

Keypad and door handle examined. Prints identified: M. HOLLIS, P. DESAI. Both open the safe every working day. No other prints.

Examiner's note. This tells you who uses the safe, which the staff codes in D-1 already told you. It cannot tell you when.

SHOP INSURANCE SCHEDULE

COVER	LIMIT
Shop stock owned by the policyholder	$60,000
Goods held on consignment	NOT COVERED

Consignment goods are excluded. Mrs Hollis must repay Mr Tennant the value of the watch herself.
She gains nothing from its loss.

YOUR ACCUSATION OF THEO LARK DOES NOT HOLD

You have accused the man the first officer accused, for the reason the first officer gave: he went back at night.

WHAT YOUR THEORY HAS TO SURVIVE

The watch was kept in a safe that writes down every time it opens. Read the safe's own log for Friday night. Then check which codes open it, and whose code is not on that list.

No score is awarded for this accusation. -10 points. You have used one of your two. Go back to the file.

YOUR ACCUSATION OF MARGARET HOLLIS DOES NOT HOLD

She was the first to open the safe on Saturday. That makes her the first to find the empty tray, not the last to hold the watch.

WHAT YOUR THEORY HAS TO SURVIVE

Your theory needs the watch to have been in the safe overnight. Was it? Something in the shop watched that tray go in. And ask what she gains: whose money is it?

No score is awarded for this accusation. -10 points. You have used one of your two. Go back to the file.

ALDENMOOR MPS · CASE REVIEW UNIT

THE TENNANT WATCH

STEP 1 · LAST SEEN

The watch was last seen at about five to five on Friday, when Mr Voss handed it back across the counter.

Evidence: C-1 (Priya Desai's own account), D-1 §4 (the 16:40 viewing).

STEP 2 · NOT AT NIGHT

Theo Lark's night visit is real, and it is irrelevant.

The safe records every open and every close. After 17:57:40 on Friday it did not open again until Mrs Hollis opened it at 08:34:10 on Saturday. And Theo has no safe code at all. Whatever he did at 22:14, he could not have opened that safe, and the safe says nobody did.

Evidence: D-1 §2 (the safe log), D-1 §3 (staff codes), C-2.

STEP 3 · THE OPEN SAFE

The safe opened at 16:38 for the viewing and did not close until 17:57.

For an hour and nineteen minutes the safe stood open. From 17:30, when Mrs Hollis left for the dentist, one person was in the shop with it: Priya Desai.

Evidence: D-1 §2 (open 16:38:12, close 17:57:40), E-1.1 (the rota: one member of staff after 17:30).

STEP 4 · THE ACCOUNT THAT FAILS

She said she put the watch straight back in the safe and closed it the minute Mr Voss left. The safe says otherwise.

The counter camera shows the rest. At 17:49 she wrapped the watch in tissue and put it in her own bag. At 17:57 she put the empty tray in the safe and shut the door, so that in the morning it would look as if the watch had vanished from inside a locked safe.

Evidence: C-1 against D-1 §2, and SLIP 03.

STEP 5 · THE CLEARED

Theo Lark has no safe code, and the safe did not open overnight. The street camera shows him in and out in six minutes with a charger in his hand. (D-1 §2, D-1 §3, SLIP 01)

Margaret Hollis left at 17:30, before the watch went, and the tray went into the safe empty. The watch is not hers and not insured, so she has to repay Mr Tennant herself. (E-1.1, SLIP 03, SLIP 06)

STEP 6 · WHY

At 07:12 on Saturday, before the shop had even opened, a watch engraved J.T. 1911 was listed for a quick sale at $2,900 by an account registered to Priya Desai's email. She withdrew it at 12:40, an hour after she gave her statement. (SLIP 04)

THEFT

PRIYA DESAI

WHAT HAPPENED

She opened the safe for a viewing and simply did not close it. With the owner gone and the apprentice at college, she had the shop to herself for half an hour. She took the watch, shut the empty tray in the safe, and set the alarm with her own code.

Then Theo went back for his charger, and the alarm log handed the first officer a suspect. She did not plan that part. She made sure to mention that he was short of money.

The safe told the truth all along. Nobody asked it.
